4) What needs to be on your sled:

- a) Rope and Lashing equipment: Staves, 6' long, and ropes to lash these together in some fashion; note that the stations will provide additional staves and rope as needed.
- b) A compass: Practice map reading skills and orienting a map using a compass.
- c) A knife: scout approved, meaning a folding knife that is sharp, no bowie knives, machetes, or similar.
- d) Your Patrol/Crew/Team/Den Flag
- e) A First Aid Kit
- f) Some amount of water: Yes! Drink lots of water. Every Scout should have a water bottle and a cup or similar.

Information on sled design can be obtained from the internet; use Google to search sled designs and there will be a number of different designs. Keep it simple though and remember to have the option of attaching a front and rear axle with wheels in case we don't have a whole lot of snow.

The example below shows a typical sled with just skis being used as the runners, you will also want that wheel option, and the sled needs to be big enough to carry your equipment. Your sled will also incorporate the theme for the event.

5) Scoring & Points Earned at events for Auction:

Scores are given on a 1 – 10 point scale with bonus points given for Scout Spirit, demonstration of Leadership skills, Professionalism, and team work.

Each station will provide a score for each sled that goes through that station; they will be entered into a spreadsheet and the sled with the most points at the end of the Klondike will earn 1st place, second best score gets 2nd place and so on.

The scoring is broken down like this:

- 1 – 3 points = participated but did not understand or prepare for the station.
- 4 – 6 points = showed some understanding but had to be coached by Station Leader, got part way through the station before being called off due to time.
- 7 – 9 points = met the overall intent of the station with no coaching but points off due to technique or skill set not being up to par.
- 10 points = complete mastery of the station, all objectives completed in a timely manner.

Bonus points:

- 1 – 5 points for leadership being exhibited during a station exercise.
- 1 – 2 points for Scout Spirit – 1 point for flag, 1 point for Cheer. The Patrol should not have to be asked to show their flag or give their cheer in order to earn these points.

Scout spirit = a Patrol Cheer, introducing the Patrol to the Station Leader, good team work with all members participating and no one standing around.

We will recognize 1st through 3rd for each station as well as the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place overall winners.

Recognition coins will be given out this year again to reward those Scouts that have shown excellent spirit in the face of adversity, or demonstrating leadership during the event.

- These coins will be given out by Camp Submarine Mates and the Station Managers

Each item will be auctioned off and the Patrols can use their total points earned from all the events to bid and “win” an item in whatever manner they elect.

No combining points for auction!!

Items for the auction will be turned in during registration.

Each item must be Scout appropriate, can be something that a patrol or unit or crew can use for camping, can be a food item, etc.
